- ☒ Scoring Commentary

Question 2: Short Answer Primary Source*3 points*General Scoring Notes

- Each point is earned independently.
- Accuracy: These scoring guidelines require that students demonstrate historically defensible content knowledge. Given the timed nature of the exam, responses may contain errors that do not detract from their overall quality, as long as the historical content used to advance the argument is accurate.
- Clarity: Exam responses should be considered first drafts and thus may contain grammatical errors. Those errors will not be counted against a student unless they obscure the successful demonstration of the content knowledge, skills, and practices described below.
- Describe: Provide the relevant characteristics of a specified topic. Description requires more than simply mentioning an isolated term.
- Explain: Provide information about how or why a historical development or process occurs or how or why a relationship exists.

C Explain how one ideology or set of ideas likely influenced the author's claims in the passage. 1 point

Examples of acceptable responses may include the following:

- Feminism is an ideology that probably influenced the author because it emphasized the importance of education for women, which is consistent with her publishing the newspaper to uplift the condition of women.

- Liberalism likely influenced the author’s ideas about liberty because she discusses the right to “act independently in the state,” which is a key component of nineteenth century liberalism.
  - Enlightenment ideas about natural human rights likely influenced the author’s statements in the passage because she cites concepts related to freedoms and natural rights.
  - The author may have been influenced by the ideas of nationalism. In the context of the Revolutions of 1848 in Europe, her mention of the ideas of liberty and humanity and her demand that women be given the right to “act independently in the state” would likely have been associated with nationalism.

A. One likely audience for the claims the author makes are lower class women in Germany. For example, many feminist movements begin to emerge in this time period like Mary Wollstonecrafts Vindication of the rights of women and Olympe DeGouges Declaration of the rights of Woman and Female citizen. This shows how many females begin to take part in movements for womens rights and independence and evidences why were a likely audience for a women's newspaper.

B. One historical context during the nineteenth century that explains the increased poverty and misery referenced in the fourth paragraph is the Industrial Revolution. For example, as the industrialization took place in Europe many people begin to specialize in certain parts of large working spaces called factories. These factories had low sanitation and incredibly long working hours aswell as low wages. Additionally, in order to find jobs many people migrated to cities which were crowded with squalid conditions in housing spaces like tenements. These conditions show how increased poverty and misery referenced was by the author.

C. One set of ideas that likely influenced the authors claims in the passage were Enlightenment Ideas. For example, enlightenment ideas of natural rights produced by John Locke were prevalent in the time period, these ideas were that people had the rights to life, liberty and property. The authors claims are influenced by this because they reference ideas of liberty and humanity for women globally. They also highlight indivudalistic ideas that were also part of the enlightenment. This shows how the ideas developed in the enlightenment influenced the authors feminist claims in the passage.

- A. One likely audience for the claims that the author makes in the passage is women who are victims of oppression and have little to no rights. The passage was included in the first women's newspaper in Germany and it encourages women to join the fight for women's rights rather than doing nothing to contribute to the cause. Since the author discusses such topics, it is clear that her audience is women with little to no rights.
- B. One historical context during the 19th century that explains the increased poverty and misery referred to in the fourth paragraph is the industrial revolution. This was a time where many families were forced to migrate to other parts of the world and work to obtain money. This unfortunately turned out to be ineffective seeing as their family suffered.
- C. One ideology or set of ideas likely influenced the author's claims in the passage by setting an example. Up to this time, many colonies acquired freedom and independence from their mother countries through methods like rebellions and revolts. By showing and demonstrating how it is possible for the oppressed minority to rise and achieve their cause, it likely influenced the author to write this passage to encourage the women around her to join the effort in hopes of eventually obtaining their goal.

- A. A likely audience for the claims the author makes is women. We can see in the passage that they are trying to help women and give them better rights, and to help the lower class.
- B. A historical event that occurred during the 19th century is the Great Depression. This left everyone in a position where they had no money and had no food. This was an extremely hard time on everyone. Many people were forgotten and passed away.
- C. One ideology that likely influenced the author's claims is all of the unfair rules against women. Women were not treated with respect nor did anyone care. Their job was to be a housewife to clean the house, take care of children, and make the food.

Short Answer Question 2

Note: Student samples are quoted verbatim and may contain spelling and grammatical errors.

Overview

NEW for 2025: The question overviews can be found in the Chief Reader Report on Student Responses on AP Central.

Sample: 2A

SAQ Part A Score: 1

SAQ Part B Score: 1

SAQ Part C Score: 1

Total Score: 3

The response earned 1 point for Part A because it identifies “women in Germany” as a likely audience for the claims made in the passage. Even though this would have been sufficient to earn the point for an identification task, the response also provides outside evidence to explain why women would have been a likely audience, discussing the early feminist movement, Mary Wollstonecraft, Olympe de Gouge, etc.

The response earned 1 point for Part B because it provides a detailed explanation of how the Industrial Revolution is a likely historical context that accounts for the increased poverty and misery of the industrial working classes, as described in the passage. The response brings up multiple aspects of the factory systems that increased workers’ misery and/or poverty, discussing extreme specialization of labor, unsanitary working conditions, long work hours, and low wages. The response also correctly describes the migration of industrial workers from the countryside to the cities, and the resulting “squalid conditions in housing spaces like tenements.” The response’s description in Part B is much more detailed than the minimum that would have been needed to earn the point.

The response earned 1 point for Part C because it explains how “enlightenment ideas of natural rights produced by John Locke” likely influenced the writer’s claims. The response also explains that to the author’s use of “individualistic ideas” was also likely influenced by the Enlightenment although this part of the response was less clear.

Sample: 2B

SAQ Part A Score: 1

SAQ Part B Score: 1

SAQ Part C Score: 0

Total Score: 2

The response earned 1 point for Part A because it identifies “women who are victims of oppression and have little to no rights” as a likely audience for the author’s arguments in the passage. Although a simple identification would have sufficed to earn the point, the response also explains its reasoning by stating that the publication of the passage in a women’s newspaper and the author’s call for “women to join the fight for women’s rights rather than doing nothing” point to women being the intended audience.

The response earned 1 point for Part B because it describes how the Industrial Revolution increased workers' poverty and misery by causing families "to migrate to other parts of the world and work to obtain money." Although this description of a historical context is overly generalized it was deemed accurate enough to earn the point since industrialization did lead to an increase in international and interregional migration.

The response did not earn the point for Part C. The response's statement that "One ideology or set of ideas likely influenced the author's claims in the passage by setting an example" does not identify an ideology or a set of ideas that influenced the author's arguments in the passage.

Sample: 2C*SAQ Part A Score: 1*SAQ Part B Score: 0*SAQ Part C Score: 0*Total Score: 1

The response earned 1 point for Part A because it identifies women as a likely audience for the claims in the passage.

The response did not earn the point for Part B because, while the Great Depression was a historical development that led to increased misery and poverty for workers, it is outside of the time period specified in the prompt.

The response did not earn the point for Part C because, while it does provide an overgeneralized description of patriarchal gender norms (acceptable as a "set of ideas" for the purposes of Part C), there is no clear explanation of how the author's ideas were influenced by patriarchal gender norms and expectations.
